BALLOONISTS START ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

(Herald Special.)

Atlantic City, Oct. 15.—Walter Wellman, the well known balloonist, and Melvin Vaniman, a noted engineer, with a crew of six men, in the big dirigible balloon "America" started shortly after 8 o'clock this morning in an attempt to cross the Atlantic ocean.

Preparations have been under way for some time for this voyage, and great interest is being taken in the trip by balloonists and aviators all over the country.

After getting fairly under way a heavy wind carried the balloon seaward, and Wellman signaled that the European voyage had started. The balloon finally disappeared in a fog.

At 11:05 the first wireless message from the dirigible "America" was received here. It read: "Headed north-east; all well on board. Machinery working fine. Good-bye." Signed J. Irwin.

Wellman carried a wireless instrument and operator among his other equipment.

A wireless message from Wellman and his crew to John W. Salus, president of the syndicate who financed the project, was received this afternoon at 1 o'clock, saying: "All did nobly. We are doing our best to repay your loyal support."

Salus answered, saying: "Great work, one of the achievements of the century; plaudits from every one. Our best wishes and God speed to yourself and Vaniman. Am with your family and will stay with them until you reach Europe. Please continue to flash."

Mrs. Wellman and her two daughters remain at the wireless station on the million dollar pier receiving all flashes. The doors of the station are locked against the throng who are trying to hear from the balloon. From the messages received it is evident every vessel carrying wireless at sea and within a radius of two hundred miles of the balloon have picked up the flashes from the dirigible. Captains of the craft which have run out of the zone are bombarding the local station for news.

Messages from the balloon at 12 o'clock said it was still going seaward. At one time it was made necessary to stop the motors in order to get the wireless going, but later it was announced that both were working perfectly.

THE PRIMARY LAW UPHELD

LEGISLATIVE NOMINATIONS IN ILLINOIS WILL STAND

The Supreme Court of That State Upholding Constitutionality of the New Law.

(Herald Special.)

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 15.—The state supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of the Illinois senatorial law.

John McInerney and Chas. E. Speey of Chicago had applied for a writ of mandamus to compel the state board of canvassers to place their names on the legislative ticket, alleging that the primary law limiting the number of candidates was unconstitutional. Attorney General Stead demurred, and the court sustains his demurrer.

As a result of the decision the legislative nominations will stand.

CAPTAIN BILL WAS TOUCHED.

State Revenue Agent McDonald Lost
Diamond and His Roll.

Wichita Falls, Texas, Oct. 1.—State Revenue Agent McDonald, who is here to collect tax from Forepaugh-Sells Brothers' show, was "touched" for his diamond stud and pocket book, containing $50 in paper currency.

McDonald discovered the robbery and seized a young man near him in the crowd. He searched the suspect, but found neither diamond nor money.

While McDonald was searching the man, William Morgan of this city, felt in his own pocket and discovered his pocket book and $75 gone. Later the fellow turned loose by McDonald, broke into a run when he sighted a local officer, who ran him through two crowded streets and fired a shot at him without stopping him.

Local officers say the man turned loose by McDonald was the robber and that he passed the money to a confederate.

Much enthusiasm is manifested over the carnival's coming and the fact that it is to show under the auspices of the Civic League is a guarantee that there will be large crowds here from all over the county. The league is to receive a good per cent of the revenue of the carnival, to be devoted to the civic improvement of the town.
